Sudbury, ON - Historic Victory for First Nations – Court finds Constitutionally Protected Treaty Right to Resource Revenue Sharing

168 years after signing the Robinson-Huron Treaty, the calls from former and current Anishinabek Chiefs for the Crown to fulfill its Treaty promise to share the resource revenue of the Treaty territory have finally been heard.

"We are so pleased that the Court has heard us and agreed with us that the treaty was not a one-time transaction, but an ongoing promise to share the resource revenues in the Treaty territory, laying the foundation for a respectful and mutually beneficial co-existence. We have always been ready to negotiate a renewed treaty relationship and now, with this decision, we hope to be able to get that work underway." said Ogimaa Duke Peltier, one of the six representative plaintiffs named in the Statement of Claim that was filed with the Ontario Superior Court of Justice on September 9, 2014 on behalf of all members of the Anishinabek Nation who are beneficiaries of the Treaty.

The action was brought against the Crown in right of Canada and the Crown in right of Ontario regarding the Crown's failure to honour promises made in their longstanding Treaty relationship with the Anishinabek Nation that dates back to the Royal Proclamation of 1763.

Under the Treaty, entered into on September 9th, 1850 the Lake Huron Anishinabe agreed to share their lands and resources with the settlers -- approximately 35,700 square miles of territory. In return, the Crown promised, among other things, to share the net resource revenues generated from the use of the land by paying annuities that would be augmented based on the productivity of the Treaty territory. Although great wealth has since been generated from the territory, Anishinabek Treaty beneficiaries received only $4.00 per year since 1874.

"It was discontent about mining activities by settlers without the free, prior and informed consent among the Lake Huron Anishinabek that forced the Crown to enter into a treaty relationship to get access to the lands and resources they coveted. Unfortunately, the failure to honour the Treaty promise meant the discontent continued and will continue until the case is settled. The decision is the first step to have the Treaty enforced to deliver a sharing of the wealth that our ancestors negotiated," according to Chief Dean Sayers.

Wikwemikong Unceded Indian Reserve Zhiibaahaasing In the judgement, Madam Justice Hennessy wrote:

I find that the Crown has a mandatory and reviewable obligation to increase the Treaties' annuities when the economic circumstances warrant. The economic circumstances will trigger an increase to the annuities if the net Crown resource-based revenues permit the Crown to increase the annuities without incurring a loss. The principle of the honour of the Crown and the doctrine of fiduciary duty impose on the Crown the obligation to diligently implement the Treaties' promise to achieve their purpose (i.e. of reflecting the value of the territories in the annuities) and other related justiciable duties.

The decision establishes that the promise is enforceable in court unless the government negotiates a mutually acceptable approach with the First Nations.

The Chairman of the Robinson-Huron Treaty Litigation Trust, Mike Restoule, believes that the federal and provincial governments need to get busy on seeking a settlement before the parties rack up more costs in the courtroom.

"Reconciliation is the imperative established in Supreme Court of Canada cases, in the Truth and Reconciliation Calls to Action and United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and we are ready, willing and able to achieve reconciliation through a negotiated settlement." said Restoule.

The decision also observed the opportunity for reconciliation through treaty renewal:

The Anishinaabe and the Crown now have an opportunity to determine what role those historic promises will play in shaping their modern treaty relationship. The pressures they faced in 1850 will continue to challenge them. However, in 1850 the Crown and the Anishinaabe shared a vision that the Anishinaabe and the settler society could continue to co-exist in a mutually respectful and beneficial relationship going into the future. Today, we arrive at that point in the relationship again. It is therefore incumbent on the parties to renew their treaty relationship now and in the future.

"Indeed, the spirit and reality of sharing will continue once a financial settlement is achieved", said Chief Valerie Richer. She added that the economy of Northeastern Ontario would benefit from such a settlement since the First Nations are part of the economic diversity of the region.

Failing settlement, the compensation assessment will be determined by the Courts in an upcoming hearing.

APRIL 1, 2019 ON-LINE NEWSLETTER

The mailout newsletter will no longer be available, in an effort to reduce costs and to minimize BFN's carbon footprint, we are moving away from the mailout newsletter. The newsletter is, and will continue to be, available on the website at www.Batchewana.ca.

This new process will also alleviate the issues around time sensitive job postings.

The website will be the primary source to advertise along with BFN authorized facebook, twitter, linkedin and Instagram pages.

*Members from Goulais and Obadjiwon will continue to receive a paper format newsletter and will have a job board placed at their Community buildings and hand delivered information when necessary.

Please visit our pages regularly so you don't miss out!!

Please contact Alex Syrette, Communications at extension 247 to be enrolled in our mass email list. In order to continue to receive the newsletter by mail this can be done by request only.

INDIAN ACT & REGISTRATION

BILL C-31 BILL C-3 BILL S-3

What are these new rulings, how are they applied and what do they mean for future generations?

What are the impacts of these new changes to the Indian Act and who is eligible to be Registered as an "Indian"?

Indigenous Affairs Canada is tasked with seeking solutions and input on what direction to move forward with Registration and dissolve their role in this capacity.

How do you, as a First Nation Member, foresee the responsibility of determining Membership/Citizenship play out?

What changes would you like to see? Or do you think it should stay the same.
