In Memoriam

Honouring the lives, service and lasting contributions of our people

This year has been especially difficult for many families within our community. On behalf of Batchewana First Nation's leadership and administration, we wish to honour and remember the individuals whose lives and service have helped shape our Nation.

Each of these individuals contributed to Batchewana First Nation in their own way, dedicating their time, knowledge, skills and compassion to the betterment of our communities. Through their work, relationships and commitment to our people, they touched countless lives and built connections that extended far beyond their respective roles.

We are deeply grateful for their contributions and the sacrifices they made in service to our Nation. Their impact lives on through the people they supported and the colleagues they worked alongside. They are an important part of what makes Batchewana First Nation a community, and they will not soon be forgotten.

Lisa McCormick
Membership and Licensing Administrator

Lisa dedicated 35 years of service to BFN, building lasting relationships with the members she supported throughout her career. Her extensive knowledge, commitment to community members and unmistakable sense of humour made her a valued member of the administration team. Lisa's contributions and the connections she formed with colleagues and community members will be fondly remembered. We are grateful for her many years of service and the lasting impact she leaves on our Nation.

Steven Boyer
NNADAP Addictions Worker

Steve devoted many years to supporting BFN community members through the National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program (NNADAP). His compassion, understanding and willingness to walk alongside individuals on their healing journeys made a meaningful difference in many lives. Steve also brought people together through music, hosting coffee house jam sessions in the Thunderbird Room at Rankin Arena. Remembered for his laughter, stories and humour, Steve created spaces for connection, friendship and healing. His contributions to the well-being of our people and the relationships he built will remain part of his legacy.

Elaine McDonagh

Education Director

Elaine dedicated more than 40 years to BFN, beginning her career in 1977 as one of the first daycare teachers at the Rankin Day Care before serving in numerous capacities and retiring as Education Director. A passionate advocate for Indigenous education, Elaine was instrumental in establishing the Batchewana Learning Centre in 1994 and securing a permanent Centre and Education Department in Manitou Park in 1999. Elaine's leadership, determination and commitment helped create opportunities for generations of learners and families. Beyond her professional accomplishments, she was known for her wisdom, generosity, humour and willingness to support those facing challenges. Her influence on education and community will continue to be felt for generations to come.

Josie Paquin

Band Representative

Josie will be remembered for the meaningful relationships she built throughout her time connected to Batchewana First Nation and the friendships she treasured with the ladies of the Band Office. Known for her kindness, wisdom and willingness to lend a helping hand, Josie was someone others could turn to for advice, guidance and support. Her creativity, generosity and warm spirit made a lasting impression on those who knew her. Whether sharing a meal, offering encouragement or enjoying time with friends, Josie brought people together and strengthened the bonds that make our community special

Angela Neveau

Former Chief of Batchewana First Nation

Angela made lasting contributions to BFN through her leadership, dedication to education and commitment to preserving the Ojibwe language. She became the first elected female Chief of BFN, serving her community with distinction. Angela also taught Ojibwe in local elementary schools, pursued formal certification as a Native Language Instructor, and contributed translations for Ojibwe-language plaques at the Roberta Bondar Pavilion and Whitefish Island. Her lifelong dedication to learning, language and community reflected her belief in the importance of sharing knowledge across generations. Angela's leadership helped pave the way for future generations, while her warmth, wisdom, music and generosity touched people throughout the Nation and beyond.

With Gratitude and Remembrance

The contributions of these individuals represent only a portion of the many people who have dedicated their lives to serving Batchewana First Nation. Our Nation has been shaped by the commitment, hard work and generosity of countless employees, leaders and community members, each leaving their own mark on the people and places they served.

We extend our heartfelt condolences to the families, friends and colleagues of those we remember, and offer our sincere gratitude for the lives they lived and the contributions they made to our Nation. Their work mattered, their relationships mattered, and their legacies will continue through the people whose lives they touched.

This list is not exhaustive. We recognize that there are other former employees and individuals whose service and contributions deserve to be honoured. If someone has been missed, we welcome you to contact the Communications Department. We look forward to including additional individuals and their stories in a future newsletter, ensuring that the people who helped build and strengthen Batchewana First Nation receive the recognition they deserve.
